Magna carta urged for child performers on TV

By Harold S. Cruz
Entertainment
BROADCAST NETWORK TV, has called for the setting up of guidelines on the participation of minors in television shows—and the House and Senate floor—and Commission on Children's Rights (NCHRC) says how about a magna carta for children?
The idea of such guidelines came up yesterday in the wake of a child abuse case filed against the television network and "Killing Willie" host Willie Soliman in connection with the appearance on the popular game show of a 4-year-old boy who played his own death scene.
TVI president and CEO Ray E. Espinoza said it was clear that the heads of the NCHRC, Espinoza, as well as the Philippine Commission on Children's Rights (NCHRC) and TVI networks came up with "appropriate guidelines that will apply to all networks and the entire industry with respect to the participation of minors in television, game and reality shows."
On March 12, is a segment of TVI's early morning game show, young boy

Intel body cites threat to national security

By Tony S. Begonia
Assistant National Editor
RISING COSTS of basic commodities and services in the country and a shrinking rice supply have become a national security concern, according to a report by the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency (NICA).
The report, prepared on Feb. 10 and a copy of which was furnished Friday by Aguirre, said one of the possible risk points being studied by the intelligence community was the supply of rice to the country.
Increasing prices of commodities due to production shortfalls led to food riots in several countries and inspired a government in 2008, while prompting the Philippines to buy huge volumes of rice, which it sold to the poor at a discount.
A tip against NICA, who helped prepare the Noy report, said only signs of unrest at a level of the private sector. There were no signs of unrest.

Aftershock jolts Tokyo a month after disaster

TOKYO—Japan on Monday experienced the strongest quake since a crippled nuclear plant that has been operating for decades, as a series of aftershock quakes rattled the northeast area region that has been devastated by the March 11 earthquake and tsunami.
A powerful 5.8-magnitude aftershock, caused buildings to sway in Tokyo, triggered a brief tsunami alert and forced the evacuation of workers working to erect a containment dome at the Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

WHY THE SUPREME COURT SHOULD UPHOLD THE RULE OF LAW AND REINSTATE ITS ORIGINAL DECISION DECLARING UNCONSTITUTIONAL THE CITY-ADOPTED LAWS OF 14 MUNICIPALITIES

There has never been a lawyer who published his own pleadings in a daily newspaper on his own accord. Whatever Estelito Nrendou's personal motives may be for promoting his own writing, we, the city readers, would like to set the record straight.

FIRST POINT - The city mayors staged a rally at the Supreme Court in order to preserve the integrity of the judiciary. We, as local chief executives accountable to our people, and with a sworn duty to protect the Constitution, are against any form of bastardizing the judicial system. Mendoza's own pleading contains the fact that he had repeatedly filed one motion for reconsideration after another in order to obtain his desired result. Never mind that court cases must come to an end. Never mind the entry of judgment already writing him to the case. Never mind the state policy on finality and immutability of judgments. And never mind the lawyer's ethical duty to respect a final decision of the Court.

We believe it is the Supreme Court, above all, that must be preserved against the onslaught of emotive seeking to overturn what has already become a final entry of judgment. We believe that Congress must pass only laws that conform to the Constitution, and that the Supreme Court is the final arbiter on constitutional issues, the last bulwark of democracy. We believe that these sacred principles should not be twisted by one single self-promoting lawyer.

SECOND POINT - This case is not about the plebiscites or the Congressional voting on the cityhood laws. It is about Congress disregarding the cityhood criteria it set in Republic Act 9809. Congress passed cityhood laws that violated the requirements of the Local Government Code, and violated no less than the Constitution.

None of the 16 so-called cities comply with the income requirement of the Local Government Code and the Constitution. Truth to tell, not all of them even had cityhood laws passed in the 11th or 12th Congress as would qualify them to the exemption they rely upon. The following facts of record in the files of Congress will show the illegality of the cityhood laws:

All the 16 municipalities do not meet the income criteria set by the Constitution and the Local Government Code.

One municipality - El Salvador, Misamis Oriental - DOES NOT even MEET ANY OF THE REQUIREMENTS.

How come the Supreme Court allowed the conversion of these municipalities into cities?

THIRD POINT - The special treatment of the 16 so-called cities must come to an end. The exemption granted to the 16 so-called cities can never be repeated again because the 11th Congress had adjourned and passed away a long time ago. We now have twenty-one (21) municipalities - Cagayan, Laguna, Calinta, Rizal, Bacoor, Cavite, General Trias, Cavite, Imus, Cavite; Carmona, Cavite; Pambangan, Nueva Ecija; Calaca, Batangas; San Pedro, Laguna; Mauban, Quezon; Sto. Tomas, Batangas; Taytay, Rizal; Marikina, Bulacan; Mariveles, Bataan; Limasata, Bataan; Bataan, Batangas; Sto. Maria, Bulacan; Norzagaray, Bulacan; Nasugbu, Batangas; Silang, Cavite; and Brangoman, Rizal - who have striven to generate the P100 Million local income requirement of the law, and they truly deserve to become cities - no exemptions, no special treatment. They just worked on their local revenues and collections, and when they do become cities, the League of Cities will gladly welcome them as new members.

It is about time we go back to respecting the laws of the land and upholding the principles of finality of court decisions. It is about time that we once again remind ourselves and those who run our government institutions that ours is a government of laws and not of men.

Kids to be taught law in school

By Nita Colita

THE DEPARTMENT of Education (DepEd) plans to formalize basic law subjects into the regular curriculum of elementary and high schools, hoping to mold the students into responsible and law-abiding citizens.

Education Secretary Armin Lucena said the Public Education and State of Law Advancement and Support (Pelas) initiative had been turned over to DepEd for implementation in the basic education curriculum.

"This comes after a series of teacher trainings and field trainings conducted nationwide since last year."

"When we say quality education, it should be the kind of education that goes beyond the basics in Mathematics, Science, English and other subjects. It should be something that will not only teach minds, but will also touch hearts and instill the students into responsible and law-abiding citizens," Lucena said in an e-mailed statement Monday.

Perhaps, now as its second phase, it moved to educating and informing the public, especially students, about the workings of the justice system.

It remained a work in progress among the DepEd, Supreme Court, Legislative Branch League for Liberty, United Nations Development Program (UNDP), and leading to situations such as USAID, World Bank and Asian Development Bank, Lucena said.

Lucena said that once finalized, it would be fully integrated into the curricula of elementary and secondary schools, using teaching and learning methods that are appropriate and relevant to each student's competencies.

IMPROVISED activists held placards and lit candles during a rally near Fukushima's nuclear site after the earthquake and tsunami that also damaged the nuclear power reactor in northeastern Japan.

Aftershock jolts Tokyo

By Greg Kessler

In the nation, this prepared its people and urged emergency workers to do all they could to save lives in the aftermath of the earthquake.

The aftershock's epicenter was located 21 kilometers south of Fukushima City and 140 km northeast of Tokyo at a depth of 19 km. Authorities issued a tsunami alert for the Pacific.

Workers battling to contain the crisis at the Fukushima Dai-ichi complex were jolted by the aftershock, which had it jolted not power to the plant's three most severely damaged reactors.

"The earthquake caused a lot of damage and may be a watershed building," said a spokeswoman for the plant operator, Tokyo Electric Power Co. (TEPCO). "We don't know how many workers were injured."

Tokyo Electric Power Co. said power supply cuts had been cut to some 20,000 households in the city of Tokyo, Fukushima prefecture, and other areas.

Media reports said a land slide resulted in one additional people killed.

A 1.4-magnitude quake on March 11, and one of thousands of aftershocks led the Fukushima Dai-ichi nuclear power plant to be damaged.

Media reports said a land slide resulted in one additional people killed.

Expanded zone

In Tokyo, Japan's Cabinet Secretary Yukio Yokota said that the government would order parts of the Fukushima Dai-ichi nuclear power plant to be damaged.

Yokota said these areas were listed to be receiving emergency evacuation instructions in a 30-kilometer zone, which would be the same as the 30-kilometer zone that was the same as the 30-kilometer zone.

Evacuation orders will come within a month, he said.

One other area may be added to increase if there is a tsunami, he said.

The Japanese government has said it will not be able to evacuate the area, but it will be able to evacuate the area.

Davao del Sur folk hold new protests vs coal power plant

DAVAO CITY—Opposition to the 300-megawatt coal-fired power plant that power firm Aboitiz Power has been pushing in Davao del Sur has once again become violent.

But in Davao del Sur, despite opposition based on incidents of killing, rape, and other crimes, the support for a similar project prepared by mining giant Xinhua Investment Group Inc. is strong.

The Pinar, residents of Pinar and Iligan in Davao del Sur have staged protests to oppose the mining project, which is located in the area.

The first protest was held in the town of Pinar, where the residents of the city said that they wanted money from Aboitiz during the company-sponsored trip to a coal-fired plant in Manila in January.

Scandal

City residents also expressed the company's plan to build a 300-megawatt coal-fired power plant in the area.

France bans Muslims' full-face veil

PARIS—France, home to Europe's largest Muslim population, banned the wearing of full-face veils in public on Monday, despite threats of protest from a group that already has split.

The decision now has the force of law to be enforced in France, says immediately later by a group of women from the north of France, who have become the main symbol of France's tiny community of headscarf-wearing women.

"I had been invited to take part in a television program while you are going and I find that today (April 7), the first day of the application of the law," Sana El-Ladi, 32, said separately before heading to a train for Paris.

"The law forbids any face-veil, but I cannot but defend them, that is to say my freedom of religion and my religious freedom," the voluntary worker and mother of three said. "This law forbids these things."

Right groups plan to protest against the law on several fronts on Monday, and a businessman has announced that he will accept a $2-million fine to pay any woman charged with wearing a headscarf in a UN courtroom.

Meanwhile, French president for the law will be impossible to enforce, even if they have been given no power to fine those who break the law, and could have resistance in already Islam-populated districts.

"The law will be infinitely difficult to enforce, and will be infinitely easily violated," said Mohamed El-Fassi, deputy head of a union representing headscarf-wearing women, as he interviews with France Press radio.

"It's not the law that is the problem," he said, predicting that when parliament votes on the law, it will be a "vote to demonstrate and not to enforce." He said, predicting that when parliament votes on the law, it will be a "vote to demonstrate and not to enforce."

"If they enforce, that's when things get really complicated. As far as power is concerned, we have to go to the courts, but we're going to pay any woman in a violent manner to a sensitive area, where they are afraid."

The law comes into effect at an already fraught moment in which tensions between the state and France's Muslim minority, with President Nicolas Sarkozy accused of engineering itself to win hard votes from a mosque in the right.

French officials estimate that only around 2,000 women, from a small Muslim population estimated at between five and six million, wear the full-face veil, but it is a national symbol of Arab and Islamic faith.

For many Muslims and rights activists, the law is a sign of the government's rejection of the rights of women to wear headscarves, which they claim is a sign of the government's rejection of the rights of women to wear headscarves.

Gulf bloc calls on Yemen president to give up power

RIYADH, Yemen—A regional bloc of all Arab states along the Gulf, including powerful Saudi Arabia, called on Yemen's president on Monday to give up power as part of a deal with the protest movement demanding for his ouster after 33 years, a Gulf Arab League said.

Keeping up the pressure, one of thousands of protesters marched in the capital, Sana'a, on Sunday a day after thousands of others had gathered in the city and nearby towns there. His women said police fired a live round of tear gas late Sunday and that many demonstrators suffered breathing problems.

The 10-member Arab League ministers of the Arab League Council meeting in Riyadh with the Saudi foreign minister, who is also a call for the president to step down, something he has refused to do. The bloc appeared to offer to mediate between Sana'a and the protesters, and the diplomats, who said Sana'a was the cause of the nation's crisis.

The plan offered by the bloc would have Sana'a sign in exchange for immunity from prosecution for the protesters.

The minister, president, once a key ally in the war against the al-Qaida group in Yemen, has tried to cling to power despite the growing daily protest calling for his resignation.

Last week, he rejected an offer by the Gulf Cooperation Council, which the group was mobilizing to force his ouster. The council had invited Sana'a and Yemen's opposition groups to head Al-Qaida, but he refused to do so.

On Sunday, a senior adviser to Sana'a said he was not in touch with the president but would be contacted by the opposition to see if they would be prepared to accept a deal.

France, UN hit Ivory Coast strongman's home

ROBBI, Ivory Coast—French and UN helicopters on Sunday landed in a position held by forces loyal to the ousted strongman Laurent Gbagbo in Abidjan, the country's economic capital, partly to force him to leave the country, partly to force him to leave the country.

The United Nations said the attack was part of its "military" campaign against Ivory Coast's president, who is also a call for the president to step down, something he has refused to do. Berlusconi arrives in court to face tax trial

MILAN—A defiant Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi arrived in court on Monday to face the latest in a series of trials over the coming weeks on charges ranging from tax fraud to paying for sex with a lobbyist.

"I will not be sentenced," Berlusconi told reporters confidently as he entered the court house, with a crowd of supporters cheering him on.

His trial began, when he was accused of being paid to lobby for the Italian government to grant a tax break to a company he owned, which he said was "an incredible amount of money" for him "and the whole country."

Gadhafi accepts African Union peace plan

TRIPOLI—Muammar Gadhafi has accepted a roadmap for ending the conflict in Libya including an immediate ceasefire, the African Union said on Monday, but an opposition representative said it would only work if Gadhafi left power.

Libyan African President J. N. Zoubeidi, who met Gadhafi at the head of a delegation of African leaders, urged them to stop an effort to "give Gadhafi a chance."

Earlier this month, Gadhafi had been seen in a meeting with the African Union, who took up the issue of the conflict in the war-torn Libya. The African Union had been in the war since the 1990s, but it was not until the 2000s that it began to take a more active role in the region.

not part of them, and I think they have to remain confident between the parties involved."

Colombian Juan Manuel Santos, who stepped up after the UN's Gadhafi's move on Monday to resolve a bitter stage of the conflict in the region and through mediation by his troops in the east, were not immediately available for comment on Zoubeidi's ceasefire appeal.

The British-based representative of the African Union leadership, General Sir Peter Wall, said it would be a "very good" if the UN plan, but would not accept any deal designed to keep Gadhafi in his seat in power, Reuters reported.

Libyan officials have repeatedly said Gadhafi will not quit. Zoubeidi said Gadhafi, for example, is the leader of the Libyan people, but it is not the leader of the Libyan people, Reuters reported.

and an inclusive transition period with a view to achieving full implementation of the political process."

He said the AU was ready to help with the deployment of a ceasefire monitoring mission and could work alongside the United Nations and the Arab League.

Asked if he feared rebels might reject the plan, Lamine said, "We believe what we have proposed is broad enough to launch negotiations... What we need is for them to accept that we are people of good will."

"We are not in any position to force anyone to accept our plan," he said, "but we are in a position to offer them a plan that we believe is the best way to achieve a peaceful resolution of the conflict in Libya."

PLDT CheckOut: A key to business success

Why some small businesses stay small

Every entrepreneur starts off with dreams of making big money. But, too many small businesses with big potential have a hard time growing.

In this fast-paced and modern world, paper checks and manual record-keeping processes of transactions will only continue with small and medium enterprises.

It's surprising how few owners of the most popular cash registers that only give the day's total. Then, there's the cash register that still makes use of the paper rolls which you have to change and to compute, recording time and effort that could be used doing more productive things. The worst thing where you still see some businesses logging their sales in notebooks and doing their money in plastic containers.

Getting insights more than marketing savvy or luck. It takes much knowledge - it's your sales and inventory data and how to effectively interpret them.

With manual sales processes, all you get are mistakes. With those mistakes, you get no information on what was bought, how many items were bought and who bought them.

Cash registers give you the day's total in paper rolls which you cannot make sense of. The picture becomes even more unclear when the customers need to be reconciled with a manual inventory log. Some businesses still rely on manually juggling sales on notebooks and moving their cash to cash boxes or plastic cans making the process a headache. Inventory management is complicated in this and the entire process of tracking, computing and re-computing takes up too much time.

In this challenging business environment, how do you cope without data?

Sometimes, sticking with traditional ways will leave you lagging behind. Small businesses may want to use small teams. They don't realize how improving their processes can greatly improve their performance.

Today, there are companies who recognize these issues and are striving to create solutions for them. One of them is PLDT, the leading telecommunications company in the Philippines.

Now, PLDT has come up with a specific solution for SMEs, apply called PLDT SME Nation. They aim to help businesses increase their profits and maximize efficiency while increasing sales through various products and services made especially for the Filipino business needs.

Partnership for the Growth of SMEs

On March 28, 2015, a partnership was born with the goal to help Philippine SMEs grow. PLDT SME Nation, ePLDT and Alliance Software Inc., signed a contract to take the lead in making new ways to help SMEs in these modern times.

With the continued expertise of PLDT, ePLDT and Alliance Software Inc., this joint venture between two companies is one that is sure to provide top-notch services and products for SMEs all over the country.

Built on a strong foundation, this partnership aims to make big changes in the business landscape today, enabling SMEs reach their full potential.

The first innovation that is born out from this partnership takes form in PLDT CheckOut. It's a web-based POS system that allows businesses to have an automated process of accepting and recording sales transactions, lets them monitor inventory levels and gives them real-time access to sales analysis.

This breakthrough is but their first step in helping SMEs do business better. PLDT SME Nation, ePLDT and Alliance Software Inc. operate a trusted partner of SMEs and is enabled to make business processes better, easier and more efficient.

PLDT SME Nation aims to help businesses increase their profits and maximize efficiency while maintaining costs through various products and services made especially for the needs of Filipino businesses. The best thing about it is that these services will help the SMEs grow in an easy and convenient manner. This partnership marks a new era for all SMEs. For PLDT SME Nation, ePLDT and Alliance Software Inc., the future marks now.

PLDT CheckOut gives SMEs 10 reasons to grow

PLDT SME Nation recognizes that it's time for SMEs to move forward. That's why they're introducing their latest innovation for SMEs: PLDT CheckOut.

It's a web-based POS system that allows businesses to have an automated process of accepting and recording sales transactions, lets them monitor inventory levels and gives them real-time access to sales analysis.

Why upgrade? There are 10 reasons.

Software installation is a cinch

Normally, POS installation is a pain. With the web-based PLDT CheckOut POS software, everything is looked by PLDT. Aside from installing the software in your computer, there's nothing more you need to do.

If spending isn't a problem

With PLDT CheckOut, there's no need for an IT person to deal with back-ups, software updates and re-configurations. It's all handled by PLDT, saving you both time and money!

Minimum hardware requirements

PLDT CheckOut has extremely low hardware requirements. It can run on basic computers.

In fact, all you need is an Internet-ready computer. The back-up is done on PLDT's server and not on your workstation. There's no additional hardware needed like back-up software or drives, or even a server.

Low cost, low maintenance

With most POS systems, you pay for the package, hardware and software. It's big money, too, which may drain your cash flow.

With PLDT CheckOut, you get a monthly subscription which

PLDT CheckOut

Real time sales management at your fingertips

Improved Inventory Control

PLDT CheckOut allows you to control inventory more efficiently. Instant access to inventory and sales numbers can also significantly enhance retail loss prevention. In a multi-task setting, inventory costs can significantly be reduced because you can track and control your inventory in real time. You have information on the items you have on hand, the items in transit as well as the customer items. That then eliminates the potential to order too much or too little.

Faster in-store operations

With PLDT CheckOut, operations run smoother. You save the time you used to spend checking and re-checking your data. Moreover, due to faster and more efficient transactions, you can serve your customers faster giving them more satisfaction.

Improved Sales

PLDT CheckOut gives you access to customer information which can give valuable insight on a customer's preferences and purchasing history. This knowledge gives you the power to provide excellent customer service. Moreover, it can give you the power to create sell in a multi-item operation by assessing stocks from other stores.

Off-site access

As long as you have Internet connection, you can access your company information through PLDT CheckOut. Now, you don't have to be in-store to be in charge of everything. You can be in the store, on vacation, or talking to potential partners and still be aware of what's happening in your store.

Eliminates Workstation and Operating System Concerns

With PLDT CheckOut, you have the flexibility to use any type of computer. Whether your current system is, there's no need to upgrade. Since it's web-based, it also means that you can access your information from any computer. You don't have to worry about compatibility issues!

PLDT CheckOut will be launched in an exclusive event called the CheckOut Summer Festival. The future merchants will be using the CheckOut program to track sales and inventory levels which will serve as a live demonstration for guests. Thus, businessmen and women will be able to personally experience the benefits of CheckOut as they enjoy a basket of summer goods. The event will be held at the NEX, 1st and 2nd floors of Global City on April 14, 2015 at 9 pm. It's sure to be something those looking to improve their business will want to check out!

GOULD IT BE that 25 years from now, most of what we know about beauty and medicine would have changed? Instead of going to the doctor, the doctor is actually moving toward you, back to the beginning of life—the human cell. They are many theories in medicine, and we know the art of healing is written in biology, including the body, mind and spirit, so we need to focus on the essential: spiritual foods, vitamins, minerals and mineral supplementation, stress management, proper sleep and proper hygiene.

More than sleep. We need so much more than a good night's sleep. But it's the best way to get started. If there was a youth pill you could make, it would be your youth. It would be to sleep. Unfortunately, most of us don't sleep. It's a tragedy; we will need to sleep more, and sleep more often than it is right now. Good sleep makes us feel more awake, more alert and more energetic.

The future looks bright...

Prerogative
The group's lead vocalist, although all the girls had their respective side parts. "See, really, we will all be able to make a huge impact in the entertainment world, but we want the group's confidence and success to appear, so first check a box on all the girls in the future's success on May 12 in the future."

Band takes search finds

Thirteen girls bands including Comic Love and Mr. Brown appear up for a shot in the Jack Brown "10 in 10" contest. The search will also feature the 2011 Southeast Asian Music Festival on April 21-23 in Bali, Indonesia in Jack Brown's appearance.

There will also be a grand show for us all. "Gloria paid up for two in the 10. April 15, we get an exclusive photo to the April 15 event, and "10" on Jack Brown's 2011 Southeast Asian Music Festival on May 12 in the 10. April 15 event."
